

Dear Sir:—

We send in this mail copy of the new edition of the Naturalists' Directory. We trust you will make it convenient to remit for the amount of the enclosed bill by return mail. The expense of collecting these small amounts, if payment is delayed, is very large, and the annoyance to us, as well as to yourself, is much more than the small amount involved. Most of our subscribers make prompt remittances.

All subscribers from whom we do not hear within thirty days will be drawn on at sight, and we will pin your subscription blank on the draft, in order that there may be no misunderstanding in regard to the matter. Please have the kindness to honor our draft, if you do not remit previously.

Yours truly,
